Per B.Prakash Rao, J

Heard both sides and at their request, the main appeal itself is taken up for disposal.

The only grievance of the appellant herein is that in spite of the directions given by this Court earlier in W.A.No.2518 of 2005 dated 23.12.2005, so far, neither the main writ petition is disposed of, nor the application seeking to vacate the interim order granted has been taken up for consideration. Instead, the respondents herein are making threat of initiation of contempt proceedings. Hence, the appeal.

Having heard the learned counsel on either side and on perusal of the material, we are of the opinion that since there is no order as such which can be aggrieved, we do not find any justification to entertain the appeal at this stage. It is always open for the appellant herein to make proper application before the learned single Judge seeking appropriate directions. The appeal is accordingly dismissed with such liberty.
